After 40 years, Hollywood Hardware is winding down

City's second hardware shop reports that it is struggling to stay afloat, too

Hollywood Hardware: known locally as a good place to go for that hard-to-find thingamajig

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

'They go down to Home Depot or Lowe's and spend $250 on a remodeling project, and they're one part away from finishing it, they come in here and pick our brains for 15 minutes and then walk out the door with a $7 part.'
TOM CARPENTER of SUPPLY HARDWARE

When Hollywood Hardware closes its doors sometime soon, a lot of West Sacramento residents will have to find a new place to go when they need some weird kind of plumbing valve or an odd electrical component – and some friendly advice to go with it.

Hollywood Hardware has been a true "fixture" in the city at 1551 Merkley Avenue since 1968. But the store has told customers it just can't continue.

Manager Art Waters told the News-Ledger that the store's owner does not want to discuss the closure with the news media yet, so few additional details were available. Former owner Jerry Smith had sold the store to the new owner relatively recently. Smith had been active in local downtown improvement groups.

A second Hollywood Hardware is located in Sacramento.

Tom Carpenter, Jr., co-owns West Sacramento's other traditional hardware store with his dad, Tom, Sr. Their Supply Hardware shop has been on Harbor Boulevard for 25 years. Carpenter, too, has trouble being optimistic. Up the street from him is a Home Depot, and a Lowe's home improvement store is located far the other direction, on Lake Washington Blvd. And then there's this bad economy.

"It's not fun, let's put it that way," Carpenter told the News-Ledger yesterday. "Our business is down 50 percent over the last two years since the 'big boxes' came in. I'm sad to see Hollywood go "

Carpenter said the drop-off in sales is about 1/3 due to the economy and 2/3 due to the big retailers. At Supply Hardware, he has a few "loyal" customers, but not enough. So he's changing his focus.

"We're changing our product mix," said Carpenter. "We are going to go to serving industrial/commercial customers."

That means West Sacramento won't have an "old-timey" hardware store with an expanded selection and a focus on service, he added.

"People are not going to have a place to go for that anymore," Carpenter commented. "We have eliminated our garden shop, we have got out of patio (merchandise) and barbeque, and a lot of our consumer items. Some of the people in town are still being loyal, though."

Carpenter said that, depending on what people want, his shop might actually have a product cheaper than the "big box" guys. But mostly, people try the big stores first.

"If they go down to Home Depot or Lowe's and spend $250 on a remodeling project, and they're one part away from finishing it, they come in here and pick our brains for 15 minutes and then walk out the door with a seven dollar part," he said. "All you consumers live and die with the big boxes."

Swim team kicks off —

Nearly 200 young 'Dolphins' start season in a new pool

The West Sacramento "Dolphins" swim team celebrated opening day of its 21st season on Saturday, with a few words from Mayor Cabaldon and some friendly competition.

The Dolphins have a lot to be excited about this year, reports Matthew Hargrove, a team parent. The team has relocated from the pool at the "old" River City High School campus to the new pool at the new Southport campus. The new pool includes a "state of the art" scoring system donated by Turner Construction.

And this year's Dolphin squad is the largest ever, with at least 185 kids, reports Hargrove.

The Dolphins offer competitive swimming to kids age 4-18.

Gang members plead guilty to assault, reports Yolo D.A.

Target was 14-year old girl who reported threats sent by text message

Yolo County District Attorney Jeff Reisig announced that yesterday, during jury selection, three members of the Broderick Boys street gang entered pleas to "assault by means likely to cause great bodily injury" and admitted to an enhancement that the crime was committed to benefit a criminal gang.

According to the D.A.'s office:

On January 6, 18-year old Joshua Osborne sent threatening text messages to the 14-year -old female victim. The victim's parents alerted police, who contacted Osborne. The following day, Osborne was driving his car along with Richard "Richie" Dazo a 23-year-old convicted felon, along with 19-year old Hilario Estrella and two unidentified females when they came upon the female victim as she walked home from school.

One of the vehicle's occupants told Osborne to pull over so they could assault the victim. Osborne pulled the vehicle over and let Estrella, Dazo and the two unidentified females got out of the vehicle. Osborne saw the four assaulting the victim and drove away. Osborne re-united with Estrella and Dazo after the assault. During the assault, the victim was told that this was what she got for running to the police.

Osborne, Dazo and Estrella are all validated members of the Broderick Boys, a subset of the Norteno criminal street gang. The Broderick Boys take their name from the Broderick area of West Sacramento.

The three defendants were set to begin jury trial on May 18. During the second day of jury selection the three decided to enter pleas.

Dazo and Estrella were immediately sentenced to eight years in the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation. Osborne will similarly be sentenced to eight years in the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation when he returns to court on July 7.

Sac keeps streetcar on track

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

West Sacramento civic leaders breathed a sigh of relief two weeks ago, when Sacramento's city council voted to keep a joint streetcar project on track. The streetcar line is slated to begin with a route that includes part of Sacramento's downtown, including the convention center area, and then crosses the Tower Bridge to a terminus on West Capitol Avenue next to West Sacramento City Hall.

Christopher Cabaldon, mayor of West Sacramento, was pleased with the Sacramento vote. He wants the streetcar system in place before the economy recovers and a new wave of private development hits the city.

"The point of this is to shape how the riverfront develops," Cabaldon told the News-Ledger. "It needs to go in first, otherwise every new development that gets built will be auto-centered."

The streetcar system – estimated at $69 million – is envisioned as an equal partnership between the two cities, he said. Sacramento is slated to pick up the bulk of the construction costs, because that city has access to parking revenues and other funding sources that could be available "in the near term." West Sacramento – which can apply long-term sales tax revenues and tax revenues from commercial properties along the streetcar route – will pick up more of the long-term operational costs.

"Sacramento would have the larger share of responsibility for the capital costs, and we would have the larger responsibility for operational costs," said Cabaldon. He said that now – in a recession – could be a good time to build as well because contractors are bidding low in their eagerness to find work.

How long will it take before a streetcar zips across the river?

"The best case is we could move forward in the next two years with construction," said Cabaldon. "There may be additional stimulus funds that would allow us to proceed on this project."

But the streetcar system could well take longer, he added.

So far, planners on both sides of the river have come up with a preferred route and some analysis, including an engineering feasibility study and a soon-to-be complete environmental impact report.

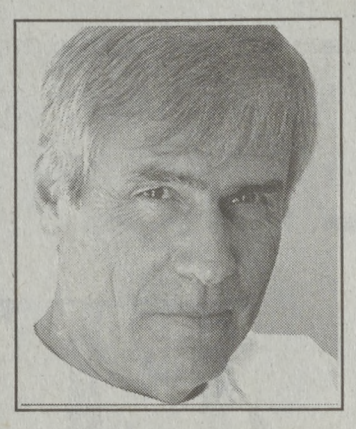
West Sacramento officials have been adamant that creating a streetcar line – modeled after those in Portland and other cities – will lead to higher quality development in the city's downtown.

Does Cabaldon agree?

"I have no doubt," he answered.

An important new theory for you to contemplate

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

Do you ever find yourself going "walkabout"? Well, in case you're not really sure, according to the free online Wikipedia encyclopedia, walkabout is a term which refers to a rite of passage where male Australian Aborigines undergo a six-month or so journey during adolescence where they live in the wilderness and trace the path of their ceremonial ancestors and try to imitate some of their heroic deeds. Webster's, however, just defines the word as referring to "a short period of wandering engaged in by an Australian Aborigine as an occasional interruption of regular work", and it's that latter definition that has made walkabout a favorite word of mine.

For as long as I can remember, I have always enjoyed going walkabout, but since there is no Australian Outback in or near West Sacramento to escape to, my wandering around trying to avoid work usually consists of just taking lengthy strolls on the quiet streets of my own neighborhood. And although I don't think much about the heroic deeds of my ancestors while I'm doing this (because I don't think there have been any), I do find it to be the perfect time to try and figure out what I'm going to write about next in this little column of mine. And the key to doing that (in addition to somehow coming up with a subject of course) is thinking up a good ending for it. You see, even if the gods decide to pass along the most profound thoughts imaginable for a new column, if it doesn't have a clever (or at least interesting) ending to it, then it's not even worth my time to put pen to paper (fingers to keyboard actually). I mean, if someone is going to take the time to read 750 words (usually more because I'm so windy), then they at least want the last few sentences to pull the whole thing together and make some sense of what came before. In other words, column writing is just like life – it has to have a good beginning, middle, and end.

On a good day of going walkabout this column almost writes itself. Most of the important sentences just somehow float into my head and then almost magically pour themselves out onto my computer keyboard once I finally get around to going to the office. On a bad day, however, all that dramatically changes, and there will not be a single meaningful thought anywhere inside my head, and since experience has taught me that there is absolutely nothing I can do to change that, I have simply learned to try and put my walkabout time to better use on those unproductive days – I think up new theories.

"No, no, Daryl, please, I don't want to hear another one of your stupid theories!" exclaimed a longtime friend of mine the other day when I cornered him while he was getting ready to mow his lawn.

"But you love my theories," I reminded him, having shared many of them with him over the years.

"I do not!"

"But you told me just a few weeks ago that you loved my last one."

"I did?"

"You sure did."

"Well, then I was lying."

"It was the one about people getting married not necessarily because they're in love, but simply because they have reached a point or age in their life when they really want to settle down and have children – and whoever they're dating or seeing at that time then becomes the lucky spouse. Remember?"

"Oh, that one. Did you know my wife almost threw something at me when I told her I thought there might actually be some truth in that one?"

"But your wife once told me that she really likes my little theories – especially the one about truth always being 180 degrees from where we think we will find it."

"She was just humoring you, Daryl!"

"So," I said, my feelings slightly hurt, "do you want to hear my latest theory or not?"

"Not."

"It's about how the decades of our life work – time-wise."

"What?"

"You know, how each of the decades of our life go fast, slow, fast, slow, fast, and then slow gain. And although I'm only through the 50's, I bet the 60's, 70's and 80's end up following the exact same pattern."

"What in the world are you talking about?"

"Think about it," I said. "When we're first born, that first decade goes by like a flash – you can't even hardly remember it. Then you become a teenager, and those horrible ten years of pimples and putdowns drag on for bloody ever. But then you finally turn 20, and that's the fastest decade of them all, when you're the most healthy and you're racing around from dawn to dusk doing all kinds of crazy stuff. But then you get to your 30's and things slow down again. You've got a bunch of kids and responsibilities by then and you have to take it easy, work hard, and make good decisions. But then come the 40's and you figure your life is half over and you better start living it to the fullest, which speeds those years up again. But when you turn 50, though, you start getting more reflective and slow down again and start savoring all the stuff that matters most in your life – your family, your longtime friends, and even your work. So there you have it – a definite pattern in terms of the decades we live – fast, slow, fast, slow, fast, and slow again. Now is that a great theory or what?"

"So, according to your theory, now that we're both in our 60's, the years are going to slow down again."

"Right!"

"Well, at least that's good news. But once we hit 70 – which isn't that far off you know — then you figure time is going to speed up again?"

"That's right, my friend. I'm afraid come 70 — if my theory holds up – then you and I are going to be hurtling towards death!"

"But if we make it to 80," said my friend hopefully, "then we can count on the years really slowing down again, right?"

"I'm afraid so – so slow in fact that they'll have to give us wheelchairs at the old folks home just so we can get back and forth to the bathroom."

"See, now that's a perfect example of why I hate your stupid theories!"

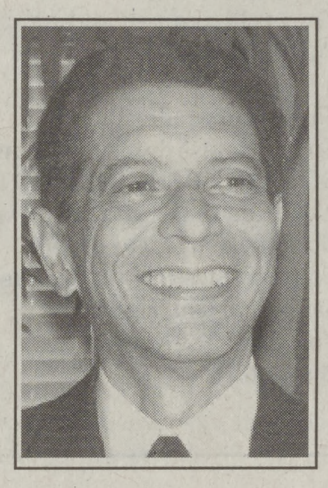
SPORTS INSIDER



By Richard Novoa

Aloha sports fans! I've returned from my Hawaiian vacation with my lovely wife just in time to join all the Kings Fans in anticipation of the 2009 NBA draft lottery on Tuesday in Secaucus, New Jersey.

The Kings have a 25 percent chance of getting the No. 1 pick and are assured no worse than the fourth pick, which is the highest pick in 18 years, after they finished with a league-worst 17-65 record. All 14 NBA teams that failed to make the playoffs are thrown into a draft lottery to determine the selection order for the June 25th draft.

The Sacramento Kings won the lottery in 1989 and with the No. 1 pick in the draft they selected Pervis "Out of Service" Ellision as their franchise savior. After the Pervis fiasco Sacramento selected with their No. 1 pick the likes of Lionel Simmons, Billy Owens, Walt Williams, Bobby Hurley, Brain Grant, Corliss Williamson, Olivier Saint-Jean, and Jason Williams in 1998.

The Kings enjoyed some great seasons to avoid the lottery but their playoff run ended in the 2005/06 season with a first round lost to San Antonio which put them back in the draft lottery. The Kings selected Spencer Hawes in 2007 and last season's pick Jason Thompson turned out to be a pleasant surprise.

Ok, so what are the Kings options for their biggest franchise decision in 18 years! Do they pick the media's overall consensus number one pick in Oklahoma's Blake Griffin or highly regarded Spanish guard Ricky Rubio? Do they take another center in 7 foot 3 Hasheem Thabeet?

I personally like the hot shooting of Davidson guard Stephen Curry or the play making of North Carolina's guard Ty Lawson but if you get a chance at Blake Griffin – you better not pass!

Kings Korner

The Kings owners are sending Chris Webber to N.J. to represent the Kings at the lottery because Sacramento is still working without a head coach. The Kings struggled this year with a franchise record in low attendance and only managed 17 wins so it's obvious that the No. 1 pick in the draft isn't going to resurrect the franchise or bring back to its golden days in one year. But the making the playoffs is not totally out of the question!

The Kings are engaged in their third coaching search in four years so expect GM Geoff Petrie to be very careful in selecting a new coach. Rumor has the Maloofs courting Eddie Jordan has their new leader. The Kings have some salary cap money saved to enter into the free agent market in July and don't forget Petrie is always ready to pull the trigger on a potential trade opportunity.

NBA Playoffs

The four Conference Finals teams are ready for battle and on paper it could be ease to predict that King James and his Cavaliers will take on Kobe Bryant and his Hollywood crew in the NBA Championship series.

First of all to win the West the Lakers must get past a very good Denver Nuggets squad led by Carmelo Anthony, who is leading the NBA players in playoff scoring. But the Lakers have beaten Denver 10 out of their last 11 meetings so I don't see anything changing. The Nuggets do have an experienced playoff guard in Chauncey Billups, who must out play Kobe for Denver to win but I still see the Lakers winning in six games, even though I hate to admit it!

In the Eastern Conference, the Orlando Magic must come up with a game plan to stop a well balanced Cleveland team lead by the best player on the planet - LeBron James. The Magic do have a couple of dangerous weapons in Dwight Howard and ex-Kings forward Hedo Turkoglu but it won't be enough to upset a team of destiny so I like the Cavs in five games.

Diamond Notes

The Giants (19-18), who are in second place trailing the Dodgers by 6 games, ended their four game losing streak by beating the Mets 2-0 on the ESPN Sunday night game of the week. The G-Men middle of the batting order is struggling big time to produce runs especially from their first baseman Travis Ishikawa, who's batting a meager .236 with 12 RBI's and zero home runs.

Something has to change at this weak spot and the G-Men also need an outfielder that can hit the ball out of the park because between their starting outfielders of Lewis (1), Rowan (3) and Winn (2), these fellows have only managed six home runs!

The A's (13-22) are struggling big time and have fallen nine games behind the first place Texas Rangers. The A's need some help everywhere on offensive and their pitching is in big trouble. Eric Chavez is back on the injured list so the A's might as well give him the ten count for the season.

Ex-River Cats Sean Gallagher gave up six first inning runs on Monday night in which he walked three, allowed two hits and hit a batter. Also, Gio Gonzalez, who was called up again on Sunday added gas to the fire by walking three batters and giving up six hits in three innings of work in the A's 13-4 loss to the Rays on Monday.

The Giants and A's are both on the road this week the Giants traveling to San Diego and Seattle while Oakland continues playing in Tampa Bay before they return home on Friday to host Arizona.

River Cats

The Cats (21-17), who lead the Pacific South Division by two games over the Fresno Grizzlies, are enjoying the hitting of Gregorio Petit's 13 game hitting streak and the pitching of Vince Mazzaro, who was named the Pacific Coast League Pitcher of the Week. The Cats always seem to manage their lineup especially with their parent club (A's) always raiding their roster to replenish their bench.

The Gatos sold out their first game season last Saturday night thrilling a home crowd of 14,414 with an 8-3 win over the Round Rock Express. The Cats will hit the road this week to play four games in Omaha and then play another four game series in Iowa before they return to the friendly confines of Raley Field on Friday, May 29th against the Las Vegas 51.

Enjoy your day – see ya next week!

'Peers' are a theme in RCHS poems

23 students submit verse this year; here are a couple of their entries

River City High School held a poetry event last month, drawing entries from 23 students.

Each participant received a copy of a book of quotations. On hand was Mary Maskell, editor of "The Athena Treasury: 101 Inspiring Quotations By Women," and "The Attitude Treasury: 101 Inspiring Quotations."

Prizes were also donated by the Sacramento River Cats (represented by vice president Tony Asaro), Herb and Linda Yip (volunteer coordinators for recycling on campus) and Sudesh Singal, teacher and librarian at River City.

"Students had a great time and many more students want to participate next hear," reported Singal. "This program is growing every year."

Here are a couple of the poems from this year's student poetry event. Enjoy.

"They think it's cool"
By Ivy Kelso

They think it's cool to dress in hoods and wear baggy pants that fall when they walk.
They think it's cool to text in class, and when they get caught, laugh and say how stupid it is.
They think it's cool to swear at friends, teachers, neighbors, colleagues, calling them names
when they don't even know them.
You have to give respect to get it.
They think it makes them powerful and more dominant when they get into fights with others over nothing, so they make up excuses. That guy over there gave me a dirty look.
He's Mexican. Perfect.
They think it's cool to get into food fights while maintenance cleans up the mess for less than minimum wage only to go home and find bills waiting for them. But hey, it's call good,
right?

They think it's cool to talk in class and tease those who actually want to receive a good education
Just because they know they can't.
They think that it it's cool to be on probation and wave their papers around in blind ignorance while others turn their heads in shame.
They think that it is hot when a girl gives herself away.
Then once she stops pleasuring them, drop her off for the next one.
They think it's hilarious when a mere child, oblivious to his words, utters profanity that he or she learned from their siblings.
They think it's cool to listen to degrading rap music as the artist makes sex appealing by making it rhyme, devaluing at the same time.
They talk and yell and scream, then tell others to shut up.
Fools only yell louder.

So get bad grades.

You think it's so cool.....
But I don't.

"It starts with a whisper"
By Koriann Einsel

It starts with a whisper,
Cruelly hissing in someone's ear.
Another reputation crushed,
a teenager's greatest fear.

It starts with a whisper
That will rapidly grow,
Into a roaring wildfire
Impossible to control.

It starts with a whisper-
soon secrets spread.
Seemingly harmless phrases you think,
that should have remained unsaid.

It starts with a whisper,
You don't know whom to trust.
Everyone's an enemy;
You do what you must.

It starts with a whisper
and a life is lost,
sucked into darkness-
is gossip worth the cost?

Home visit program aims to help kids succeed

From First 5 Yolo

Iliya was only 3 ½ years old when First 5 Yolo's School Readiness program home visiting specialist, Luda Semeryuk, referred him to the school speech therapist. Iliya couldn't speak in sentences and even the separate words he tried to say were difficult to understand. It was clear to Luda that Iliya needed some intervention to help him prepare for entering kindergarten when he turned 5.

That was 18 months ago. Now Iliya is a typical and talkative 5-year-old. With the help of Washington Unified School District speech therapists, Iliya has passed all his individualized education program (IEP) tests and doesn't need speech therapy any longer. His ability to speak has so improved that he is able to communicate at the same skill level as other children his age.

The Home Visiting program, funded by First 5 Yolo under its Ready to Learn initiative, uses the Parents as Teachers (PAT) home-visiting curriculum and has proven to be successful in Yolo County.

During fiscal year 2007/2008, program staff completed 300 home visits, serving more than 45 English, Spanish and Russian speaking families. The program involves one or two visits per month. In addition, 70 families were screened and supported with literacy tools, health insurance, assistance with special needs issues and other social services needs.

First 5 Yolo Executive Director Julie Gallelo notes, "Families working with the School Readiness staff have an 'advocate' to help them become more informed about early development stages and, if necessary, to access critical support services."

The purpose of the School Readiness programs is to improve the ability of families, schools and communities to prepare children to enter the school system ready to learn and succeed. The First 5 Yolo School Readiness program is funded by a dollar-for-dollar match consisting of state commission funds combined with locally leveraged resources. By mandate, the First 5 Yolo Children's and Families Commission is required to focus its initial as well as maintenance efforts on schools that scored in the lowest three deciles of the Academic Performance Index (API) in 1999. The two school districts in Yolo County that met the criteria for participation include Washington Unified and Woodland Joint Unified. The school sites selected by the School Readiness Task Force for participation in the program include Elkhorn Village Elementary, Stonegate Elementary, Westfield Elementary and Prairie Elementary.

The School Readiness Programs in both communities are school linked and collaborate with multiple programs and service providers in an effort to provide a seamless system of services for families. These services include access to early care and education, family support programs and health and social services. The two districts serve approximately 1,275 children and families each year offering the following components:

- Family literacy (Raising a Reader, Latino Family Literacy, CBET collaboration)
- Home visitation (using the Parents as Teachers curriculum)
- Parent education workshops and skills training
- Parent/Family Education workshops and training
- Kinder transition camps (four-week camps on each campus)
- Kinder orientation and transition to K activities and information

Gallelo added, "Families that have received help from the School Readiness program note their children enter the school system confident, with increased skills and a positive attitude about school."

First 5 Yolo encourages all parents and caregivers to learn about local resources that can help their children. For more information, please call 530-669-2475 or visit www.First5Yolo.org.

Second specimen of 'pest' moth is found

From the County of Yolo

A second Light Brown Apple Moth (LBAM) has been trapped in Davis, indicating a possible incipient infestation of this pest.

The first LBAM found in Davis was detected in early April. Detection of a second LBAM invokes both a federal and a state interior quarantine in Yolo County. The quarantine is necessary to prevent the artificial spread of LBAM and is critical due to the significant potential consequences to state, national and international agriculture and the environment. The quarantine will impact production and retail nurseries, fruit and vegetable producers, green waste producers and receivers, community gardens and farmer's markets.

The LBAM is native to Australia and is found in New Zealand, the United Kingdom and Hawaii. The range of host plants is broad with more than 2,000 plant species known to be susceptible to attack by this pest, and more than 250 crops. The LBAM threatens California's environment by destroying, stunting or deforming young seedlings and damaging new growth in the forest canopy. The moth also feeds on host plants and damages or spoils the appearance of ornamental plants, citrus, grapes and deciduous fruit tree crops. For more information on the LBAM visit www.cdfa.ca.gov/lbam.

"This moth is a generalist feeder; it attacks a wide range of hosts", said Yolo County Agriculture Commissioner Rick Landon. "As a non-native species it does not have natural enemies. It will impact native plants, ornamental plants, backyard fruit and nut trees and agricultural crops. Its host range is so broad that the quarantine lists those crops that are exempt rather than those that are quarantined. Aerial applications to control LBAM are not currently an option."

For more information, contact County Agriculture Commissioner Rick Landon (530) 666-8154 or Dennis Chambers (530) 666-8140

Westmore student wins with essay

Fourth-grader Claire Leader of Westmore Oaks Elementary School won first place in the 26th annual "Old Sacramento Schoolhouse Museum Essay Contest. This year. She was honored on May 8 in a ceremony at the museum.

Her sister Emily had won the contest in 2008 with an essay that told the story of a young girl corresponding with President Ulysses S. Grant in 1875. This year's winner by Claire Leader continues the story, through the eyes of the young girl's sister.

Claire's prizes from the contest included a cash award, blue ribbon and certificate. Her teacher, Barbara Butler, also received a prize for her role as Claire's teacher.

CLAIRE LEADER

"A Letter to Mayor Christopher Green"
Prize-winning essay by Claire Leader

It was December 10, 1875, and it wasn't just an ordinary day. It was a rainy day. In fact, it had been raining for two days.

"Oh, hello there Mary. You best be going to school soon. Its about to start," said Mrs. Anderson. I was at the General Store looking at the pretty writing paper.

"Clang, clang!" I heard. It was the school bell! I ran so fast, that on my way there, I tripped on my homemade skirt from Ma! Finally, I was there, bonnet and all. Last week, I wrote to the mayor of Sacramento, Mayor Christopher Green because last year my sister, Emily, wrote to President Ulysses S. Grant and received a response and train tickets.

It was nine o'clock, according to the bell, when Miss Plum announced that two people had received a response to the letters we had written. "The first person to receive a reply is Helen," Miss Plum announced. Finally, she was done reading Helen's reply from Governor William Irwian. "Congratulations, Helen," commented Miss Plum. "Now, the second person is Mary Carey. She wrote to Mayor Christopher Green. Oh, no! It's time for lunch. Sorry, Mary. I guess that you will have to wait." At last, lunch ended and it was time for Miss Plum to read my response aloud. It said:

"Dear Miss Mary Carey,
Thank you for your letter and invitation to come and get a tour of your school. It is highly appreciated to get a letter from a nine year-old girl in my city. However, I do have a surprise for you myself. I am on my way there, and by the time that you get this letter, I should be at the door.
Sincerely, Mayor Christopher Green"

"Knock, knock," we heard. Everyone gathered together at the door. "Where is Miss Mary Carey?" questioned Mayor Christopher Green as he walked through the door.

"Right here," I said in a graceful voice. So, we began the tour. I showed him how the girls put their pails and bonnets in the front of our one-room schoolhouse. I showed him my quill pen, my McGuffy Reader, and my chalk and slate. Lastly, I showed him how the girls sit on the one side and the boys the other, the stove, well, and our games such as marbles, stilts, jumprope, and hoop and stick.

Finally, he left to go to work. He said, "Bye and thank you for the tour. Here are some treats." He gave us each candy and he even gave me paper!

My day of fun was over. When I got home, Ma fixed my skirt, gave me a 2 cent stamp to write a thank you letter, and finally, it has had stopped raining. That was the best day of my life, so far. Since I am only nine years old and have many more days of schooling, I should have many more letters to write. Hopefully more visitors also.

UNITED STATES FIBRE PRODUCTS FACTORY LOCATED IN WEST SACRAMENTO

GROUND HAS BEEN PURCHASED JUST SOUTH OF THE M-STREET BRIDGE AND BETWEEN THE COUNTY ROAD AND OAKLAND ANTIOCH R. R.

Last Wednesday forenoon at the office of the West Sacramento Company, seventeen acres of land were transferred by the West Sacramento Corporation to the United States Fibre Products Company to be used as a site for a factory that will be started on May 1st.

Architects are now engaged in perfecting the plans of the buildings and on May 1st the actual work of construction will be started by the contractors.

The main building will measure about 700 feet in length by 100 feet wide and will be considered the first unit of the factory. Other units will be added later on as demand comes for the product of the factory.

The ground selected is immediately north of the Horst Packing plant and between the county road and the right-of-way of the Oakland-Antioch Railroad. It is known as the tomato patch, because during several seasons past tomatoes were grown there and produced enormous crops.

H. S. Wanzer, one of the promoters, said to The Independent yesterday:

"This place was selected because of its proximity to the rice mills whose by-products will be used extensively in the manufacture of the wall-board or fibre board which we intend to produce.

"We estimate the factory will be in operation on or before August 15th, and will employ in the neighborhood of about 50 men.

"The building will be a frame structure and will be rushed to completion as soon as the plans now under way are finished.

"We expect to start building operations not later than May 1st.

"A siding 1100 feet in length will be built to connect with the Oakland-Antioch Railroad.

"Powerful machinery that will be used in the factory has already been ordered and word has been forwarded today to rush the manufacture of several pieces that must be built to order.

"We anticipate that all machinery will be placed on or before August 1st.

"The temporary offices of the corporation will be located in the Capital National Bank Building in Sacramento."

This is another one of the important industrial concerns lately located at this side of the river in Yolo County. It means prosperity not alone for the district south of the M-street bridge but for the town of Washington and Sacramento.

This is a new industry, unheard of till this time and was located here through the efforts of Mr. Wanzer, J. M. Henderson of the Sacramento, and O. A. Robertson of Del Paso.

MASS MEETING CALLED FOR APRIL 15TH TO DISCUSS LIGHTING AND GAS RATES

At the meeting of the Washington Improvement Club last Tuesday night, it was decided that a public gathering of the property owners of Washington would be called on Tuesday evening, April 15th.

This meeting has for its purpose the discussion of the lighting rates for electric juice in the town and also the securing of an extension of gas service to this side of the river from Sacramento.

The meeting last Tuesday night was hindered a good deal by the dance given in the school house to help the ambition of the Parent-Teachers' Association in securing funds to procure playground apparatus.

It was estimated that every person using electric lights would be interested in securing a reduction of the rate, especially because notification has been received by the club that the matter would be given a hearing in San Francisco on May 6th.

The club believes that a delegate or representative should be sent to present the case of the people of the town in order to point out the fact that the lighting rate in Washington is 10 cents per kilowatt, while the rate in Sacramento is only 7 cents.

The meeting on April 15th will be open to all the property owners who have an interest in this question and on that occasion also the question of an extension of gas mains from Sacramento to supply the householders of Washington will be discussed.

As summer time approaches, it is imperative that some fuel causing less heat, in the homes of the community than wood or coal, must be secured.

Some time ago when this proposal was up for consideration, eighty-five home owners and property owners in Washington signed up to become consumers of gas, if only the mains and the supply were extended from Sacramento.

Another question that may demand some time at the meeting on April 15th is that of good roads.

It has been rumored that the Board of Supervisors of Yolo County is about to levy a direct tax of $1 per $100 of valuation to build the roads and that this extra $1 tax will extend over a period of five or six years.

Supervisor Leinberger will be asked to attend the meeting on that date so that the people may be enlightened in relation to the proposal of building roads.

The Yolo Independent is on sale at Gray's News Agency, 429 K street, Sacramento, and at the Post Office in Washington.

BRYTE FIREMEN WILL DANCE TOMORROW NIGHT

The volunteer firemen of Riverbank are good and ready to enjoy themselves tomorrow evening at the benefit dance in the public school.

The assembly hall has been brushed up and decorated for the occasion and the Washington jazz band will furnish the music.

A big crowd from Washington is going to attend this dance in reciprocity for the good showing made at the Washington dances by the residents of Riverbank.

The Riverbank dances are noted for their unrestrained pleasure where there is an absence of hypocrisy and a real familiarity that resembles the old time country dances.

The object is a worthy one, too.

News-Ledger Editorial:

The bad news will end -- sometime

We human beings have a tendency to see a trend happening and assume it will go on forever. The stock market will continue to go up (or down) because it's been doing that for a while. Newspapers will disappear, because they're continuing to struggle and shrink (especially the big newspapers). Big stores will drive small ones out of business. Layoffs will continue until there's no one left to lay off.

There are trends in West Sacramento. A lot of businesses are suffering. We've lately seen the demise of Baker's Square, a couple of Quiznos restaurants, the longtime Gorman's Stationery store, and others. We're now watching the last days of one of the city's good local hardware stores (Hollywood Hardware) while the other hardware store is still trying to find a formula that will allow it to compete against the "big box" stores. And the "big box" stores may not be doing all that great either.

Things will turn around.

Sometimes that doesn't happen until we've all pretty much given up hope that it will. A new balance will emerge, in some respects similar to the old balance, and in some respects quite different. Some of the trends we're looking at now will level off or change direction. A new balance will emerge. Life will go on.

The News-Ledger doesn't frequently speak up on national issues, but this particular issue has become a pet peeve: there are knuckleheads who continue to claim that the science on "climate change" is still divided, controversial, or uncertain.

This claim needs to be exposed as a sham. Those who make it are either ill-informed or deliberately misleading. Consider how the tobacco companies were caught cynically denying that their products caused cancer even after their own scientists reported that cigarettes did cause cancer; some industrial interests are using similar tactics to slow down the country's actions against climate change.

Yes, there are a few scientists left who sincerely doubt that we are changing the earth's climate dramatically. There are other doubters who are financially tied to Big Oil and other backwards-facing interests. But all these doubters are relatively small in number.

The fact is that there is a growing and overwhelming scientific consensus that humans are causing climate change, and that this will cost lives and property. Among most scientists, this central part of the debate is over. Major scientific organizations agree on this point. The peer-reviewed scientific journals agree on this point. These claims are verifiable; you can check them out yourself.

Those who claim that the science behind human-powered climate is still "up in the air," or that the "mainstream media aren't being fair" on the issue are propagating a myth. There is a consensus about climate change among scientists, if not among talk radio hosts.

The next time your friend or neighbor tells you the climate change issue is still "up in the air," ask him to find you a recent, peer-reviewed article in a science journal that challenges the basic theory of climate change. If he's right, that shouldn't be hard to do.

Letters to the Editor

Save the Bryte post office

A number of years ago, the United States Postmaster General wanted to close our little Bryte Postal Annex. We, as a community, guided by Bill Kristoff, who was the station manager there at the time, arranged a face to face meeting with the USPS western regional director, which was held with him at the Golden State Middle school Auditorium. We were promised faithfully that our branch would be kept open in perpetuity.

Then the open window hours were changed - cut from 8:30am-5:00 p.m. to 8:30-12:00 p.m. by the West Sacramento area manager. Then, more recently, the policy regarding stamp quotas was changed in such a manner as to cause the clerk to run out of stamps more quickly, thereby forcing more and more customers away from the branch. Now, a decision has been made to close it the branch in 2010.

We, the Bryte and Broderick Community Action Group, are starting a letter writing, petition signing, politician contacting campaign to try and hold the USPS to their promise. Our neighborhood is full of older immigrants who depend greatly on their postal branch to conduct their business with their relatives "in the old country."

Their children, and/or grandchildren have moved away, they don't speak English that well, they're not on the Internet, and, most importantly after their experiences in the land of their birth, they're not going to invite government employees into their homes to pick-up their packages.

So, contact us at our website: bryteandbroderick.org, or c/o P.O. Box 788, Bryte, Ca. 95605-0788 for the latest information. Of course, we'll continue to keep you informed here as well. We need you all to get involved in keeping our historic, and important post office open.

The idea of Go Figure is to arrive at the figures given at the bottom and right-hand columns of the diagram by following the arithmetic signs in the order they are given (that is, from left to right and top to bottom). Use only the numbers below the diagram to complete its blank squares and use each of the nine numbers only once.

COUCH THEATER DVD PREVIEWS

BY DNA SMITH

It's a slow week. No major motion pictures are coming out on DVD this week, but there are a few gems to be found, mostly in the form of re-releases of films and TV show boxed sets. Here are my faves:

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Land of the Lost: Complete Series" (Limited Edition Gift Set) — Released to coincide with Will Farrell's theatrical remake of the cult '70s kids show, this DVD package is 32 flavors of cool. Not only do you get the complete series, but it comes packaged in a retro, metal lunchbox like the ones sold back when the show was on TV.

"Falling Down" (Deluxe Edition) — "Falling Down" is an historic film. Not because it's a cinematic masterpiece (it isn't), but because it's the only reasonably good movie director Joel Schumacher ever made. Michael Douglas stars as a bespectacled engineer named Foster who's lost his job and his mind during a blistering hot day in Los Angeles. Foster goes ballistic, raging against minorities and well, society in general, as he cuts a bloody swath throughout the City of Angels. Robert Duvall plays a cop (who is retiring that day and has issues with his much-younger ex-wife) who tracks Foster down. Not sure what makes this DVD release "Deluxe." Maybe it's the commentary tracks featuring Douglas and Schumacher. Still, it's a pretty good Guilty Pleasure Movie.

"Jeeves and Wooster: The Complete Series" — Before Hugh Laurie became a household name in America with "House," he was a major television star in the UK with such shows as "A Bit of Fry and Laurie" and "Blackadder." But Laurie's best work can be seen here in "Jeeves and Wooster," the brilliant television adaptation of P.G. Wodehouse's satirical look at the English upper class during the Jazz Age.

Laurie plays Bertie Wooster, a good-hearted though dim upper-class bachelor whose aunt hires a valet named Jeeves (Stephen Fry) to keep the poor young fool out of trouble — a talent for which Bertie excels. Most of Bertie's misadventures involve him attempting to help his equally dim friends with their romantic entanglements, which leads to Bertie concocting a hare-brained scheme and Jeeves discretely saving Bertie's bacon when the situations go all higgledy-piggledy.

TV SERIES

"Ice Road Truckers: The Most Dangerous Episodes"

"The Closer" The Complete Seasons 1-4

"Designing Women" The Complete First Season

"Law & Order: Special Victims Unit" The Ninth Year

"Gunsmoke" Season 3 Vol. 2

Puttin' on the Ritz: Fred Astaire and the Fine Art of Panache
by Peter J. Levinson
(St. Martin's Press, $32.50)
Reviewed by Larry Cox

Without a doubt, Fred Astaire was one of the most celebrated entertainers of the 20th century. How did a kid from Midwestern stock with roots in the late 19th-century Jewish communities of Austria fashion himself into one of the most sophisticated men ever to dance across a motion picture screen? Many of the answers are to be found in a fascinating new biography written by the late Peter J. Levinson.

Astaire was born in Omaha, Neb., in 1899, and he began his professional career appearing in vaudeville with his elder sister, Adele. They co-starred in "Lady Be Good" and "Funny Face," two musical comedies that were especially written for them by the Gershwin brothers. When Adele married and retired from show business, Fred, with the help of Ginger Rogers, revolutionized the film musical. The Rogers and Astaire films — including "Top Hat," "Swing Time," "Flying Down to Rio" and "Shall We Dance" — have become classics of American cinema.

Levinson, the author of several critically acclaimed biographies that documented the lives of Tommy Dorsey, Harry James and Nelson Riddle, died shortly before the publication of this, his final book.

As in his previous biographies, Levinson conducted extensive interviews that provide rich historic details and an almost rollicking narrative. He surveyed the actor's entire career, from vaudeville to Broadway, from Hollywood to radio and television. The 200 people he contacted who knew and worked with the actor include Debbie Reynolds, Artie Shaw, Joel Grey and Mel Ferrer. Astaire's relationships with his dancing partners are explored, and it is revealed how RKO choreographer Hermes Pan helped create his elegant persona.

Jerk Pork Fires Up the Grill

Caribbean dishes exhibit the influence of a wide variety of cultures and cuisines including British, Dutch, French, Spanish, East Indian, West African, Portuguese and Chinese. The cooking technique that made Jamaica famous is the spicy jerk marinade that's used for both meats and vegetables. The name is derived from the way the meat is poked or "jerked" with a sharp object to create the holes where spices are inserted.

Jerk cooking dates back to the Carib-Arawak Indians who inhabited Jamaica in the 17th century. After capturing an animal and thoroughly cleaning it, the carcass was "jerked" and the resulting holes were stuffed with a variety of spices. Hot peppers and herbs were plentiful on the islands and were used as a preservative before refrigeration was available. The combination of spices also acted as a marinade and a way to tenderize tough cuts of wild game.

To cook the jerked meat, the Indians dug a deep pit and lined it with stones. The pit was filled with green pimento wood, which, when burned, would smoke heavily and add to the flavor. The holes that were "jerked" into the meat also allowed heat to escape without loss of moisture.

Using marinades based on hot peppers and herb combinations was created by the Indians and the West African Cormantee — who were also called Maroons, the name given to slaves who escaped the plantations — to flavor and preserve a variety of meats. Jerk marinade is composed of four main ingredients: Scotch bonnet peppers, whole allspice berries, scallions (also called green onions or spring onions) and thyme. For best results, the meat should marinate in the refrigerator for 12 to 24 hours.

After marinating in the jerk spices, the meat should slowly be smoked over a low fire. Using pimento (allspice), apple, mesquite or hickory wood chips provides an intense smoke that will permeate the meat and create an authentic jerk flavor. The wood chips should be soaked in water for at least 30 minutes before placing them on the coals. This slow smoking method also makes the meat moist and tender.

Jerk marinades are a wonderful way to add spice and a touch of the Caribbean to your barbeque menu. This recipe for Jerk Pork uses the traditional marinade recipe; however, other spices can be incorporated to create your own flavorful variation.

JERK PORK

Jerk marinades typically use Scotch Bonnet peppers, one of the hottest peppers in the world. Remember to always wear gloves when preparing fresh peppers. It's best to remove the stems and seeds with your gloved fingers or paring knife. Removing the seeds doesn't affect the flavor, but greatly decreases the heat. Afterward, always wash your hands thoroughly with soap and cold water and clean any utensils or surfaces you have used.

- 1/3 cup vegetable oil
- 1/3 cup distilled white vinegar
- 4 green onions, chopped
- 2 cloves garlic, chopped
- 2 to 5 Scotch Bonnet peppers, seeded and minced, to taste
- 3 bay leaves
- 3 peppercorns
- 1 tablespoon dried ground cinnamon
- 3 to 4 whole allspice berries, lightly crushed
- 1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 3 pounds pork chops, about 1 inch thick

Combine the oil and vinegar in a small bowl. Stir in the green onions, garlic, chili, bay leaves, peppercorns, cinnamon, allspice, pepper and nutmeg.

Trim any excess fat from the pork chops. Place pork chops in a re-sealable plastic bag. Pour the spice mixture over them, coating each chop well. Place the bag of pork chops in a baking pan and place the chops in the refrigerator to marinate for up to 24 hours, turning once or twice every four hours.

Allow the chops to come to room temperature before grilling. Heat the grill until the coals are somewhat white with ash; the flame should be low. Place the chops on the grill and cover with the lid. Grill for 5–10 minutes per side, until the chops are no longer pink in the center. Serves 4–6.

Stuffed Pork Chops

The aroma of this dish will remind you of childhood trips to your grandparents for Sunday supper. If you don't have rye bread for the stuffing, use whole wheat.

- 4 teaspoons vegetable oil
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 1 golden delicious apple, peeled, cored and chopped
- 1/2 teaspoon caraway seeds
- 1 pinch dried thyme
- 2 slices rye bread, toasted and cut into 1/4-inch pieces
- 2 tablespoon chicken broth
- 1/2 cup chicken broth
- 1 tablespoon spicy brown mustard
- 4 (8 ounces each) pork loin chops, 1-inch thick
- 1/4 teaspoon salt

1. In 10-inch skillet, heat 2 teaspoons oil over medium heat. Add onion and cook until tender, about 5 minutes. Add apple, caraway seeds and thyme and cook 3 minutes longer. Transfer apple mixture to medium bowl. Wipe skillet clean.

2. Stir bread pieces, 2 tablespoons broth and mustard into apple mixture. Pat pork dry with paper towels. Holding knife parallel to surface, cut a horizontal pocket in each chop. Stuff apple mixture into pocket of each chop and secure with toothpicks. Sprinkle with salt.

3. In 12-inch skillet, heat remaining 2 teaspoons oil over medium heat until hot. Cook chops until they just lose their pink color throughout, about 7 minutes per side. Transfer chops to warm platter.

4. Increase heat to high. Add remaining 1/2 cup broth to skillet and heat to boiling, stirring to loosen brown bits from bottom of pan. Boil broth until reduced to 1/4 cup, 3 to 5 minutes. Pour sauce over chops. Makes 4 main-dish servings.
